

Resources to Help Comply with New OSHA Standard

The federal Occupational Safety and Health Administration (OSHA) published a COVID Emergency Temporary Standard (ETS) back in June. The standard, which currently is in effect, aims to protect health care and health care support workers from exposure to COVID-19 in setting where people with COVID-19 are reasonably expected to be present. Health care employers must develop and implement a COVID-19 plan to identify and control COVID-19 hazards.

This has generated many questions about how to comply among medical practices.

Below are links to some helpful resources.

- Is Your Workplace Covered by the ETS?
- A template for developing an OSHA COVID Compliance Plan, prepared by OSHA, that health care providers can use when developing or assessing their plan for compliance
- OSHA COVID-19 ETS Fact Sheet
- June 25 webinar by OSHA

8.13.21 Note this information was provided by the NC Medical Society.

Recruit, Train, and Retain: Developing the workforce for a healthy North Carolina